Ahead of New York's highly anticipated September fairs, we connected with galleries to hear about the artists they're showcasing this week. Below, we share a selection of emerging and established names whose works are not to be missed at The Armory Show, Future Fair, and Independent New York—and on Artsy.

Jarrett Key
A Good Laugh, 2021
1969 Gallery

Jarrett Key
Flower Arrangement #2, 2021
1969 Gallery

A recent graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design's MFA painting program, Jarrett Key is swiftly making a name for themselves through their singular cement paintings. Applying oil paint to wet cement, the young artist refreshes traditional fresco techniques while foregrounding their own personal narratives, including memories from growing up in rural Alabama. Key will have a solo show at 1969 Gallery in March 2022 and was recently featured in the group show "This is America" at Kunstraum Potsdam in Germany.
